Welcome to our final newsletter of the year!

We're excited to share our biggest highlights from the last twelve months, and give you a first look at what's happening for us in 2023.

As we take you back through our proudest moments, we hope you'll feel encouraged by our achievements to see what we plan to bring to the world of sustainable packaging through the end of this year and beyond.

Our brand new printer/die-cutter

In February, our Milton Keynes site saw the exciting installation of a brand new inline double-sided print & die-cut machine.

This fantastic new printer has allowed us the opportunity throughout this year to print both sides of a box in a single machine pass, improving our capacity and output to meet all of our customers' needs!

Launching skytidy®

The Reedbut Group team visited Hamburg back in June to attend the World Travel Catering and Onboard Services Expo (WTCE) and showcase our exclusive new skytidy® product.

Developed in collaboration with a leading British airline, the skytidy® airline trash compactor box is designed to help ease the process of onboard rubbish collection.

We were very excited to be able to exhibit this exclusive Reedbut Group product at the WTCE this year. We now offer a range of skytidy® products, all aimed at streamlining inflight service and bringing new sustainable solutions to the airline industry.

Award-winning products

We were also exhibiting two of our foremost eCommerce products this year – the eLok at Packaging Innovations in May, and the eLetterbox at London Packaging Week in September.

The eLok, another exclusive Reedbut Group product, is both 100% recyclable and tamper-evident, with a unique self-locking system that opens easily and is resealable for returns if required. This saw it among the top ten nominees at this year's Innovation Showcase at Packaging Innovations.

The eLetterbox was the big winner at London Packaging Week, taking first place for innovation! We're very proud of the team behind this brilliant plastic-free and sustainable eCommerce solution.
